SECOND SOUTH PARIS BEAN FESTIVAL TO BE HELD FRIDAY

The South Paris Bean Hole Bean Festival, the state's newest, may soon be a rival to other large festivals. Its start last year is an indication of the popularity of the event.

Attracting nearly 1,000 last August, many of whom were disappointed when the supply of beans ran out, those in charge plan to handle up to 2,500 this Aug. 5 at the South Paris Fire Station Grounds, with the event scheduled rain or shine. Two floors of the station are available for seating the public if the weather is unfavorable.

Last year's lavish menu has been enlarged, and those seeking the home-grown, ground-baked delicacy will be served: bean-hole-baked beans, brown bread, hot dogs, pickles and relishes, sauerkraut, coffee, milk and home made pie. Service will start at 4 p. m.

Chamber of Commerce sponsored, a three-way presentation will be shown to visitors to the village. South Paris made products will be displayed throughout the village, a part of Maine Products Week; and the affair will be topped off with a Paris Nights band concert or street dance.

Preparations are already completed this year, efficient serving of large groups, table ware will be available when the event starts and general handling of the affair should be prompt. Last year plates were 45 minutes late arriving, by which time service was a complete shambles, although all took in good spirit.

If the event is the success its chairman, Courtney T. Mason, believes it will be, next year the group plans to engage the Oxford County Fair Grounds for its Third Bean Hole Bean Festival.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

You may be interested to know that we had most of our culverts including State Aid and Town Road Improvement road needs, as well as the 1955-1956 cutting edges for snow plowing, on hand before the recent rise in steel prices.

A short time more should see the Meadow Brook bridge completed. Considering the amount of concrete and steel in this bridge, Bethel should be free from very much expense on this bridge for quite a number of years.

GREENWOOD CITY MAN KILLED IN CRASH AT HICKS POND SATURDAY

Kusti V. Ylen of Greenwood City was killed Saturday when the coupe in which he was riding left the Greenwood-Norway road and crashed through trees at the shore of Hicks Pond. Other occupants of the car, Olavi Niskanen and John Nummelo of Harrison, and Reino McKen of South Paris were found nearby. Ylen's death was caused by a fractured skull and other injuries. The injured men were taken to the CMG Hospital, Lewiston, where they are reported in good condition.

Niskanen was suffering possible head injury with lacerations of the head. Nummelo suffered lacerations and abrasions of the toes on his left foot, forehead lacerations, and possible head injury. McKen's right arm was fractured and his nose was injured.

The accident was investigated by State Troopers Marshall and Wing, who reported skid marks on the highway measured 200 feet from the point where the car first struck the dirt shoulder. It then veered to the other side, back across the road and through a guard rail to bounce off two oak trees and come to rest in the water.

The wreck was discovered by Leroy Abbott, a West Paris rural mail carrier. Ylen was found dead on the lake shore by Dr. Thomas Nangle, West Paris physician, called to the scene.

Kusti V. Ylen was born in Finland, November, 1935, the son of Kustaa and Fredrika Ylen. He came to this country 42 years ago and was employed as a woodsman.

Besides his widow, Ida Heisten Ylen, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Elina Sonkkila, Finland; Mrs. Salma Ylen, Berkeley, Calif.; Mrs. Suoma Viemi, Auburn; one brother, Kusta R. Tamminen, of Greenwood.

Ideas from other editors

From the Shamokin Citizen, Shamokin, Pennsylvania: As men try to order their own affairs, they become entangled in the legalistic phrases that confuse their intentions and subject their status, no matter how deliberately they plan their enactment, to endless interpretations. Too often the laws man makes for himself are expedients designed to bypass some temporary impasse; they are left on the statute books long after they have fulfilled their temporary purpose only to create future obstacles to justice. Because man sees in part and does not understand all that he sees, he cannot write a law that is just to all men. His laws are filled with contradictions and absurdities to which he is not blind. He persistently tries to correct his imperfections by enacting more laws and just as regularly compounds his own errors.

Those who pass through the portals of man's hall of justice can gaze at the bronze plaques of the Ten Commandments and be reminded of the teachings of their faith. God's law is a simple law, brief in content so that its meaning can be kept alive in the minds of men. There has never been need to revise the Ten Commandments to fit the changing ways of man even though there have been various interpretations. Theologians' efforts have been not to change the word of God but to determine more exactly from the study of ancient writings the Ten Commandments as God gave them to Moses.

From the Independent Record, Wildwood, New Jersey: The poor house and its horrors are fast passing out from the American scene. However, the problem of finding a suitable home for the old folks is still a big one. Most of them desire to be independent and want to live by themselves and not be a burden or to disturb their children. So-called homes for the aged are springing up all over the nation. But they are expensive, with the aged turning over what money they have saved for the balance of their life care. Some of them are happy homes, some are not. When sickness overtakes them they are sent to hospitals with all their money gone. What then?

Old age Federal assistance pension now averages $51.20 a month. But to get it one must be practically destitute. It behooves all of us to find some better way of making the last years of the old folks happier and a credit to ourselves.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The budget can be balanced and taxes cut without any reduction in military strength, and without eliminating any item of useful public works or any "delivered" Federal contribution to health, education and welfare.

That is the conclusion reached in the final Hoover Commission report to the Congress, which summarizes the recommendations made in the 18 previous reports on specific agencies in the executive branch of the government.

The second Hoover Commission, which has now wound up its monumental task, was given a much broader assignment than the first Hoover Commission of 1947. It dealt extensively with questions of policy, where the first Commission was pretty much confined by the existing law to administrative and organizational matters. In the course of the work it studied 60 of the 81 independent government agencies for which the President is directly responsible. These accounts for over 95 per cent of executive expenditures. The magnitude of the job is indicated by the fact that federal medical services are carried on by 26 executive agencies, legal services by 51, research and development by 23, insurance and related activities by 194, and transportation by 22. During their investigation of the government's activities in food and clothing, to take just one illustration, members of the Commission's task force on subsistence visited 115 separate installations.

The recommendations fall into three categories. Fifty of them are of a nature which might be presented to the Congress by the President under the Reorganization Act of 1949 or implemented by executive order. The other 145 are within the authority of the various departments and agencies to adopt and act on.

The Commission also shows how large capital sums could be regained by the Treasury by liquidating certain lending agencies, speedily disposing of surplus property, and so on. It makes recommendations for lifting some of the burden of administrative responsibility from the shoulders of the President who, obviously, cannot possibly give adequate personal attention to all the varied and complex agencies in the executive branch.

Legislation to put the Commission's proposals into effect is now being drafted. Some of the laws, in all probability, will be passed without any great difficulty. Others will deal with highly-charged and controversial issues and will be long debated.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Amongst people, ownership is one of the most common. From a pocket full of marbles to a cabin on a creek full of fish to the gleaming car in town, all are in the blood and desired, key to man. It is good that it is so, three desires cause the peeling off of coats, the rolling up of sleeves. Without the right of ownership, we would be a sad kind of outfit, and such idea leads me to comment on what I see as I look under the covers and/or listen to windy speeches on very plans of letting the State be the big I AM, as we all and talk.

One sign that we are careless in our appreciation of our ownership rights is our neglect to fix the State and State. Confusing I say it. We don't seem to envy the present drift away from the idea that Freedom is a personal right. Freedom to own things is sure enough threatened as States

As the Gov. owns more States can more—Towns own more—there is going to be that much less for poor little Williams to own when he gets into long pants, and asks what was pop and grandpop thinking about in telling these chicken things happen. Green-up Willie will have something there—and not too super-easy to answer.

THE AMERICAN WAY

Forced to Take Relief

DeWitt Emery

EDITOR'S NOTE: DeWitt Emery is president of the National Small Business Men's Association. The bureaucrats'll getcha if ya don't watch out.

They got Harrison County, Ohio. For five years this County succeeded in taking care of its individual disabled without federal aid. This year the Ohio Supreme Court ruled that the County must bow to the dictates of the spenders, federal and state, and take the money provided by a benevolent government for the purpose.

This decision doesn't seem to mean much to the individual taxpayer. The total amount involved is only about $4500 a year and in these days of government giveaways that's a very small drop in the bucket.

Even the State of Ohio, according to the reports I have received, was willing to let wayward Harrison County go its own carefree way. But F. S. A. felt differently. If Harrison County wouldn't accept its $4,500, perhaps some three million dollars a year should be withheld from Ohio because one of its counties wouldn't obey the directives of a higher authority. With that threat the case went to court.

One of the reasons Harrison County officials balked at the "gift" was that it meant another set of records. Each of the 83 Ohio counties must keep separate records and make separate reports on payments to disabled persons. Harrison County officials rightly fear the dangers of record keeping for the government. Any business man will tell you that records required by government agencies represent a major portion of their operating expenses. Even medium sized local businesses will have one or two employees on their payroll whose sole output is information needed to comply with government regulations.

At Washington, according to the Hoover Commission, the cost of paper work is $1 billion a year. The records occupy 24 million cubic feet in some 2,000,000 file cabinets. In the neighborhood of three-quarters of a million government employees do nothing but paper work.

The United States Government in far and away the greatest user of stationery-type paper in the world and it will not surprise either individuals or owners of businesses to know that the Internal Revenue Department is tops in the field.

The program of government aid, like the encroachment of government into private business, is an insidious thing. It keeps creeping in when nobody seems to be looking. It takes an occurrence like

TOO HOT FOR COMFORT

WORTH REPEATING The Hoover Commission's studies of government are an outstanding service to good government. They show conclusively that hundreds of millions of dollars can be saved to taxpayers by tightening up federal operations and putting them on a businesslike basis. . . . Follow out the Hoover recommendations and the country would have a balanced budget, perhaps a small surplus for the first time in many years. Or income taxes could be reduced about ten per cent. — Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard.

"The guaranteed annual wage does more than add another risk to the business enterprise. It freezes the cost of labor at a level which could prove disastrous. It operates to make borrowing more difficult. From the workers' standpoint, those without guarantees would be discriminated against, those without employment would have less likelihood of getting jobs, and those at work would have their initiative, their incentive and their enthusiasm blunted." — Charles R. Sligh, Jr., NAM Exec. Comm. Chrm.

"One way of judging what the future may bring is to look at the record of the past. The story of American achievement under the individual enterprise system is clear and undisputed." — Lincoln County News, Damariscotta, Maine.

Child labor to the bureaucrat is child labor whether it's sweat shop tasks in a dank environment or body building activities in God's good fresh air. There can be no distinction between the two in laws or government regulations.

It's difficult to reverse a trend. It's difficult to change or eliminate a welfare program once it is well established under bureaucratic direction. But it can be done. It can be done when the average taxpayer demands that the trend be reversed and local people have the control and administration of welfare funds. They know the needs better than the distant bureaucrats can ever know them.

the Harrison County decisions to illustrate how far we have come along the road to statism.

The Harrison County case illustrates another of the wrongs of government paternalism. The laws or the rules laid down by bureaucrats who administer them are inflexible. No exceptions can be made for a small unit, even if it's to the advantage of everyone (except the bureaucrats, of course) to make such an exception.

It's difficult to reverse a trend. It's difficult to change or eliminate a welfare program once it is well established under bureaucratic direction. But it can be done. It can be done when the average taxpayer demands that the trend be reversed and local people have the control and administration of welfare funds. They know the needs better than the distant bureaucrats can ever know them.

He ate his breakfast and returned to the store, took the merchandise out of the window, cleaned up and with all working together the Christmas window began to take shape. They worked Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and that night they had a beautiful window to show for their efforts.

without guarantees would be discriminated against, those without employment would have less likelihood of getting jobs, and those at work would have their initiative, their incentive and their enthusiasm blunted." — Charles R. Sligh, Jr., NAM Exec. Comm. Chrm.

"The guaranteed annual wage does more than add another risk to the business enterprise. It freezes the cost of labor at a level which could prove disastrous. It operates to make borrowing more difficult. From the workers' standpoint, those

Child labor to the bureaucrat is child labor whether it's sweat shop tasks in a dank environment or body building activities in God's good fresh air. There can be no distinction between the two in laws or government regulations.

It's difficult to reverse a trend. It's difficult to change or eliminate a welfare program once it is well established under bureaucratic direction. But it can be done. It can be done when the average taxpayer demands that the trend be reversed and local people have the control and administration of welfare funds. DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

HUEY J. Guldry, Church Point, Louisiana, awoke one morning and began to worry about dressing the store windows for Christmas, a good Christmas window being very important. It requires planning, imagination and time to do the work, the importance of which is measured by its effectiveness.

He went to work at 8:30 A.M., and all he could do was worry about the window, how to trim it, would he have the time. But he was doing nothing about getting the work done. At 7:30 he went to breakfast but he couldn't eat. The thought of his problem was making him shaky. Suddenly a thought came to mind, a part of the Lord's Prayer which goes "Give us this day our daily bread." With that thought he relaxed and began to realize that instead of worrying about the windows he should be thankful that he had breakfast before him and that he was able to eat it, and that the work to be done could be accomplished.

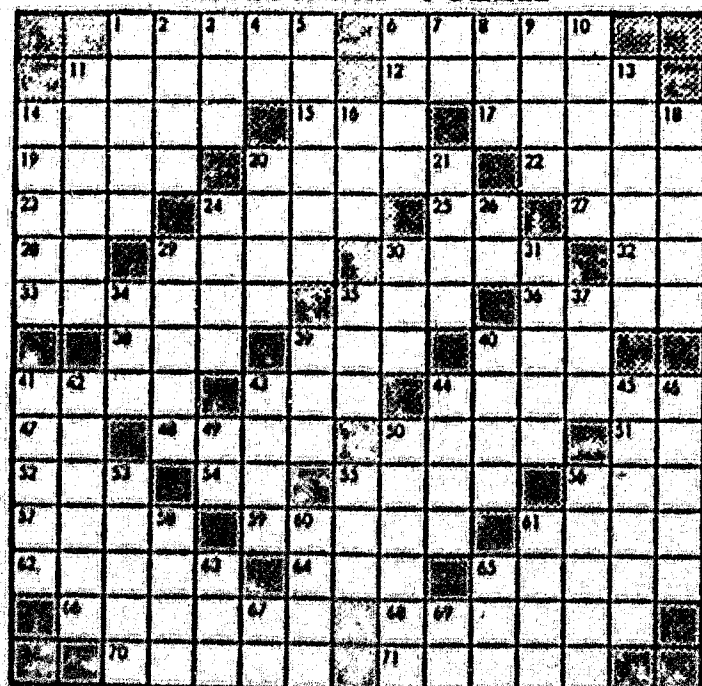

He ate his breakfast and returned to the store, took the merchandise out of the window, cleaned up and with all working together the Christmas window began to take shape. They worked Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and that night they had a beautiful window to show for their efforts.

His belief: that if you stop worrying and get to work, you won't have anything to worry about.

Thursday, August 4
Read Philippians 4:10-12.

I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. (Philippians 4:13).

ONE summer day, my seven-year-old son and I were out in a row-boat with a friend. My son was at the oars and doing very well for a boy who had never rowed before. Some distance from shore, we suggested turning back. He turned the boat around and a few minutes later brought it to shore. He was joyful because he had been able to do it!

Christ calls us to perform tasks which He knows we are capable of doing. There may be people who would do them for us, or who will tell us to wait until another time. Why should we expect the hungry to wait until tomorrow to be fed when they are hungry today? The naked to wait until tomorrow to be clothed when they are cold today? The illiterate to wait until tomorrow to be taught when God's message is waiting to be read today?

Let nothing turn us aside from Christ's call, for He knows the needs of all His children and He knows who to send to help. Let us answer Christ's call with complete trust in His will, knowing that we can do all things through Him.

Prayer

O God, may we study that we may know Thee. May we listen that we may hear Thy voice. May we love that we may serve with understanding and humility. In the name of Christ, who is the way, the truth, and the life. Amen.

LAST TRIP TO THE PLATE

By James D. Harsh

HANK SAMUELS squatted down in the on deck circle and surveyed the situation with a little touch of sadness. It was the bottom of the ninth in a scoreless ball game. He saw his team mate go down on strikes, shaking his head in admiration at the skinny youth on the mound. Then Hank walked to the plate slowly, a familiar plate, its whiteness showing clean where the umpire had just brushed it. This was to be his last time at bat. At forty-three he felt old. He had worked his way up to the majors and then had gone the long way back to the bottom at forty-three. His knuckles were gnarled and his legs ached whenever he lowered his huge body behind the plate to receive the pitcher's delivery. He had decided with an unimpressive batting average of .188 that he'd stick strictly to press clippings. The kid looked like a pro.

Maybe he didn't know he was next to his no-hitter, thought Samuels, squaring his shoulders, the timber resting easily across his ready shoulder. But Hank was thinking about that last time at the plate. The kid had gotten him on a grounder, a strike out, and a long fly to center field. Hank wanted desperately to give the fans something to remember him by. He wanted to sew out one more four-bagger before he hung up his playing gear for the last time. The kid was set and the ball was fast and inside.

"Ball one!" the ump called. The count rose to three and one, when the pitcher floated a slow inside curve. Hank rose forward to meet the ball, the sound was music to him. He knew without tracing the patch of the ball that it was gone, gone into oblivion, riding with the hero's force, 350 feet over the left field wall. Hank Samuels trotted slowly around the bases. He listened carefully to the shouts of the fans, the loyal Hutchins fans who had traveled the short distance to the Plainsville home diamond. He listened carefully, because he would never hear that sound again. He wanted to remember that moment, hold on to it as though it were some invisible trophy presented to him by his friends. He was glad he had given the Hutchins' fans something to shout and something to remember.

Old Hank had showered and on his way out of the dressing room, he paused at the door reserved for the Plainsville team. It was almost empty except for the skinny kid sitting on the bench, a towel around his shoulders. Hank stood there for a full minute watching the figure, head sagging, shoulders lowered.

"Great game," he said slowly, and the kid's eyes turned up to meet the old catcher.

"It's you," he said slowly. "I wanted to strike you out. I wanted that more than anything else."

"I know it, I knew it then. Something made it come out that way." The kid stood and started to dress.

"You've got a great future," Hank said. "I've seen a thousand pitchers work in my day. You came close to a great triumph today, but that's baseball. It isn't a gold plated road. Maybe it would have been too good a start if you'd gotten the no-hitter today. You've got to learn to take the bitter with the sweet, and you'll be all the better for having learned it early."

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER
"The Exiles in Babylon."
Lesson for August 7: Psalm 137: 1-6; Daniel 3: 1-18.
Golden Text: Daniel 3: 17-18.

"By the rivers of Babylon," the exiled poet wrote of loyalty to God and to Judah. For in Babylon the exiles were asked to sing a song of Zion for the entertainment of their masters. And the poet refused to sing the Lord's song in a strange land and he hanged his harp in the willows that grew along the streams.

There was nothing wrong in singing the Lord's song in a strange land, with the right purpose in view in the worship of God. But the poet refused to sing the song for the entertainment and mirth of those who held them captives.

As the poet refused to dishonor the Lord's name, there were others of the exiles who would not dishonor God by worshipping the image of himself that Nebuchadnezzar had set up. And the king ordered Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego to be cast in a fiery furnace. But God intervened to save the young men from a horrible death.

Then did they maintain their loyalty when they were threatened with terrible death. Likewise many of the exiles were true to their way of life, in a strange land, as they stood firm against a worldly policy to compromise with those that were evil.

A Tribute:

MRS. ADA CONANT ROLFE

I think it is only fitting and right that we should all stop a minute in the whirl of the busy world to pay tribute to our friend and neighbor Mrs. Ada Rolfe, who has passed from a long period of pain and illness to the beautiful eternal life where pain and sorrow are unknown.

She was one who was ever busy with her hands making many beautiful pieces of all types of crocheted, embroidered and knitted articles, also beautiful braided rugs. She was always very generous with her handiwork and her children and grandchildren, and many friends were always remembered on birthdays, Christmas and other occasions. Besides all this she earned a great deal by making these articles to sell to tourists and out-of-state buyers.

I shall always treasure memories of so many happy occasions when some of us dropped in at her cozy home to chat a while and see the latest rug, chair set, or bedspread, which she had so tastefully designed. She had made five crocheted bedspreads the last time I heard her speak of them sometime before she was taken ill, besides a tablecloth, and many many lovely rugs, which were her hobby in recent years.

For the past year she has been gradually failing and has been very tenderly cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Carla Bennett, at her home, assisted by the sons' wives, Mrs. Ruby Rolfe and Mrs. Clara Rolfe. She has had her children with her everyday and nothing was left undone by her children or grandchildren to contribute to her comfort and happiness, during her long illness and also in the five years since Mr. Rolfe died in 1950. Up until she had to go to the hospital a year ago Mrs. Rolfe lived in her own home which she loved. Her's was a jovial, kind and courageous nature and she was a shining example of Christian faith never doubting or complaining but thankful each day for her many blessings even when she was suffering the most.

We cannot think of her idle. She must be a homemaker still. God giveth that work to his angels. Who fittest the task fulfill. And where the mountains slope to the westward, And their purple chalices hold The new made wines of the sunset, Crimson, amber and gold. In the old wide opened doorway With the elm bows overhead The house all garnished behind her. And a plentiful table spread. She has stood to welcome our coming.

Watching our upward climb, In the sweet June weather that brought us many and many a time.

But now the picture has changed And her work on earth is done. We gathered to bid her goodbye, Sadly one by one. The smile on her face was quiet. And flowers were on her breast. Her hands were folded together. And the word on her lips was "Rest".

And yet! It looked like a welcome For her work is compassed and done. Things are seemly and ready. Her summer has just begun. It is we who may not pass over. Only with song and prayer. A little way into the glory we may reach.

As we leave her there. And some where away in the hills tops Of the country which knows no pain She will watch and wait for our coming.

To bid us welcome again. And so at rest in God's kingdom, Where sorrows are unknown. Dear friend you will wait for our coming. When God in his infinite wisdom Will call us each one "home". Dedicated to one of the best friends I have ever known, Ada Conant Rolfe.

Swiss Salad Sandwich

Ham and Swiss cheese combine to make Swiss Salad Sandwich—a unique flavor achievement to enjoy during August, Sandwich Time.

During August, Sandwich Time, discover for yourself the versatile, economical, nutritious complete sandwich meal. Let appetizing sandwiches take the work out of meal-making this summer.

Two Swiss Salad Sandwiches on a plate—with fresh tomato slices, lettuce and pickles—make a light lunch with "staying" power. For the sandwiches, use crisp, enriched poppy seed rolls, fresh from the bakery. Stuff them with a tempting combination of ham, Swiss cheese, chopped vegetables and caraway seeds. Milk as the beverage provides additional food value. Top off your sandwich meal with inexpensive grape snow pudding and creamy custard sauce.

The tanginess of this sandwich filling is just what's needed to interest lazy summer appetites. Essential B-vitamins and food iron in the enriched rolls, together with the protein-rich filling, make Swiss Salad Sandwiches a valuable main dish for summer luncheons and suppers.

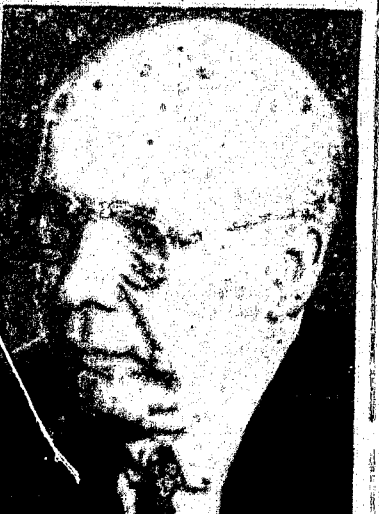

SWISS SALAD SANDWICH

1 cup ground ham or table-ready meat
1/2 cup cubed Swiss cheese
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons catsup
1/2 teaspoon caraway seeds
6 enriched hard rolls
Butter or margarine

Combine ham or table-ready meat, Swiss cheese, green pepper, onion, catsup and caraway seeds, mixing until well blended. Cut hard rolls and scoop out part of the center. Spread with butter or margarine. Fill centers with ham mixture. Replace tops. Makes 6 sandwiches.

The Mountain Rangers 4-H Club of Upton held their 10th meeting July 31 on the top of Mt. Spec. We ate our lunch at the bottom of Mt. Spec and then went up the mountain. We took turns going up in the tower and saw some beautiful views. We held our business meeting at the base of the tower.

The meeting was opened by the vice-president, Lucille Lavallee. We sang America, and gave the club pledge. We didn't bring any flags to salute or any reports to read. We are going to have our next meeting August 2, 7:00, Upton Grange Hall. The meeting adjourned.

We went down the mountain about three times as fast as we went up. We ate the rest of our lunch, then went home. Each person brought their own lunch. Justina Bernier, Club Secretary.

To Alaska with Charles M. Smith

The first of June, Charles, and his roommate at McGill University in Montreal, went from Portland, Maine, by train to Detroit, Mich., where they had made arrangements with an agency to pick up a new Plymouth station car to be delivered to its new owner in Anchorage, Alaska, via the Alcan. Highway. This deal paid their expenses for the trip which took twelve days and covered 6,000 miles.

Following are excerpts from some of his letters home —
This is about the first minute that I've had to sit down and write at least a page since we got here and I can only exclaim endlessly about the scenery and the good fortune of the trip up.

We have been staying with "Bud" and "Polly" (Dorothea Burbank Johnson) and Bud has let us use his Hillman to beat around in looking for a job. Yesterday we visited two classmates from Amherst who are at Fort Richardson. They in turn directed me to a classmate and fraternity brother who is up here with his wife on Elmendorf AFB. I have yet to catch up with Stevie Clough and Barry York.

Our trip, if you wish to look at it on the map, passed across the states in about the most direct route. We hit Chicago and Minneapolis and then came straight across the plain states on route 2, the same one that goes through Bethel. Some of our meals we cooked out over my little gas stove, others we ate in lodges along the way. All the food was good but expensive. Gas at its highest was 29 1/10 cents for one Imperial gallon. Gas was costing us about $15 per day.

The winter snows were still piled 25 to 30 ft in Logan Pass of Glacier National Park and the high banks menaced the road that had been cleaned by rotary plows the day before. Snow slides were still feared so the road wasn't open for public travel. We were among the first into the fringes of the park this year and some pictures I took can only show the budding greenness and rocky wildness that exists.

It being Saturday we felt something special was in order so we took a shower in one of the park washrooms that went with some cabins and then visited the largest establishment within reach, an acre or so of montana oil sand where the range grass and sage brush has been pushed back far enough to make room for a cafe and two saloons. This is on the Blackfoot Reservation and constitutes the liquid metropolis of Bobbs, Montana.

Conservation Farming in Oxford County

by Douglas L. Marston
Soil Conservation Service

The Oxford County Soil Conservation District tree planter is now being repaired to get ready for fall planting. Over 200 thousand trees were planted with the machine this spring and it really needed a major overhaul. Anyone who might be interested in fall tree planting should contact either the Soil Conservation Service office at South Paris or Sumner Burgess, of the Maine Forest Service at Dixfield.

Well, this has been a busy week for construction work and the weather has certainly been good for it.

We started out with a stream channel improvement project on the William Chapman farm in Bethel. This stream had become clogged and was flooding a nice Intervale field and keeping it wet most of the year. An adequate channel was constructed to handle the maximum expected runoff water.

A small drain was also constructed on the Chapman farm to remove water from a low wet area.

A sod waterway was also constructed on the Edmund C. Smith farm in West Bethel. This was a project started several years ago, but was never completed because of the very wet conditions.

A 600 foot drain was also constructed on the Philip Pinkham farm in South Rumford.

I would like to remind everyone that the Oxford County Agricultural Field Day will be held August 16 at the Barrows Farm in Oxford. That is only about a week away so be sure and mark this date on the calendar; bring your lunch and plan to stay all day.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"Mama—will you make Tommy stop drinking my paint water?"

"Fish & Game Roundup"

by Ron Speers

Spending a day with one of the Department of Inland Fisheries and Game's Warden Supervisors can be a tremendously interesting experience to any sportsman. I know, because last week I had the opportunity to get out in the field with Warden Supervisor Roy Gray of Augusta and see just what was underway in his division. Roy's division, Division B, covers a good sized slice of the State, comprising 10 warden districts. It runs along the coast from Yarmouth to Belfast and goes inland as far as Vassalboro on the north and Mechanic Falls in the south. Problems within the division are fairly typical of all warden divisions, whether in Aroostook County at the top of the State or York County at the southern border.

First stop for the day was to check on some beaver trouble. One of the coastal wardens had a family of beaver that insisted on running their dam across a highway culvert and each time they did it the road promptly disappeared, much to the dismay of local traffic. Sure enough, the culvert was plugged again when we stopped, so an hour was expended in removing the brush and getting the water flowing once more.

Beaver are notoriously persistent, and the local warden reported that this was the fourth time he had cleared that particular culvert. Warden Supervisor Gray made a note of it and told the district man to keep him informed. If the beaver continued to plug the culvert, they would have to be removed to some other area.

Second stop was a warden with dog trouble. The deer herd in his area was constantly plagued by free running dogs and he was worried about the fawn crop. He reported on his efforts to halt the damage, received some advice from the Supervisor, and we were off to see the next man.

Maine's Warden Supervisors are a picked group of law enforcement men with an aggregate of outdoor experience running into hundreds of years. Each and every day they run into numerous problems and questions within their divisions that would tax the ability of the average man to handle.

All of them are taken in stride by the supervisors and handled easily and well.

Chatting with Supervisor Gray as we rode through his division, I found that conditions for wildlife were very favorable at present. Deer are showing up well in all districts, and the coming fall should see an excellent deer season. Fishing has fallen off however, and the best catches are going to the fishermen who fish during the nighttime hours. Gray looks for a pickup in the fishing luck when cool weather approaches, however.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLDTIMERS

From Agnes Just Field, Firth, Idaho: I remember when the only form of social contact with our neighbors was called a "surprise party."

Neighbors were far apart and roads were bad so everyone went to the home of the victim and took plenty of food and extra bedding so if the party making lasted until daylight no one was inconvenienced—that is, no one but the hostess.

Once there was a hostess that surely merited sympathy. A new family had moved into the neighborhood and her husband was afraid the life might be too hard for his wife so he promoted a party for her. Naturally the largest home was selected for when all the children were included, as well as the hired men and hired girls, there were usually about a hundred guests.

I can see them as they filed in—big folks, little folks... some of them having driven great distances in sleds and the men came into the warm room reaching to get their coats off their backs.

As soon as the crowd seemed all there the musicians began to "tune up" and everyone wanted to dance. The living room was about twenty by twenty and covered, wall to wall, with rug carpet generously padded with straw. Pocket knives came out and the guests dropped to their knees in twenty minutes the target was hit on all sides, a window was opened and out went the carpet and straw in a cloud of dust and the dancing began.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, L.L.D.

Many times we look with pity at the men who walk along the streets tapping the sidewalk, the sides of buildings, or the curbstones with white canes. We frequently go to their aid when we see these handicapped people waiting patiently for a change in traffic direction so that they may cross the street. Most of us think of the blind as living in a walled world where the normal activities of life are unseen and unknown.

Actually many of these people live in an expanded universe beyond the understanding of those of us with normal eyesight. They often see with their ears and with their other senses more acutely than we do with our eyes. Many of them are better judges of people and have a deeper comprehension of life problems than do the rest of us.

In thinking about this generally happy group with inner sight, we sometimes wonder if the rest of us are not more blind to the reality of circumstances than we need to be. Although most of us have not been deprived of these windows to the brain, many of us have pulled down the shades of our thinking processes on some of the worst dangers all about us. All of us would do well to survey the frame hazards in our freedom, in our economic and religious foundations on which we base our American standards.

One of the traffic hazards in America, to which we are blinded, is the traffic of words with double interpretations and misinterpreted meanings which hide the force of a program to break our nation. Our individual liberties have created for us the highest standard of living in history, the most satisfactory way of life ever achieved and the greatest spiritual fervor ever known. Our country is not a merit that individualism is to be eliminated if they gain their ends. They call it selfishness and they seek to legislate the individual into a great mass "to control selfishness."

Our enemies would channel religion from its true source of serving God and fellow men into an instrumentality for increasing the power of the state over the individual. We must open our eyes and use the eyes within to see the creeping destruction aimed at our American way of life through the corruption and misdirection of the subversive influence working in many ways and in many areas of the world.

BETHEL PONY LEAGUE NOTES

Games coming up: Thursday, Aug. 4th, Gorham, N. H., Boys Club at Bethel, 8:15 p. m. Friday, Aug. 5th, Oxford at Bethel, 8:15 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 7th, Bethel at Rumford, 2:30 p. m. Tuesday, Aug. 9th, Bryant Pond at Bethel, 8:15 p. m.

All Oxford County Little League and Junior Pine Tree League teams have cancelled the trip to Boston Sunday on account of the polio epidemic there at this time. Arrangements will be made for a later trip.

Friday, July 26th — The local Ponies traveled to Gorham, N. H., to engage the Boys Club in an after supper game. We played on the town's regulation diamond, but it didn't seem to make any difference to our boys, as we came out on top winning 8-6. Dickie Roberts pitched good ball for the first 4 innings and was relieved by Albert Sumner who finished out the game when it was called after the 6th because of darkness. Bethel players racked up 12 hits against opposing pitching while Gorham was collecting 6 scattered bingles. Some of our leading hitters were Sumner and Jodrey with 2 for 3, Richard Saunders and Jerry Smith with 2 for 4.

Sunday, July 31st — Bethel entertained the Lovell team at Thurston Field and wound up victorious 7-2. It was a close and well played ball game. The game was scoreless until the home club pushed two runs across in the 4th and 5th more in the 5th. Lovell scored their two runs in the 9th inning. Albert Sumner pitched a fine game allowing the visitors only 6 hits. MacDonald hurled for Lovell and our boys collected 10 hits. Our catcher, Dickie Roberts, hit a long home run in the 4th inning to score the first run. The leading hitters for the home club was Teddie White who collected 3 for 3, Mel Jodrey 2 for 3 and Kenzie Roberts 2 for 4.

Tuesday, August 2 — The Bethel Ponies traveled to South Paris and played a ball game which they won easily 16-5. The game was called at the end of the 5th inning on account of darkness. Jodrey started on the mound for the local team and hurled very well until the 4th inning when he was relieved by Richard Saunders. Kenny Roberts and Albert Sumner both hit home runs for the winners. Our best hitters were K. Roberts, 4 for 4, Mel Jodrey, 2 for 2, Sumner, 3 for 4, and Teddie White, 2 for 3.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Elk Grove, Calif., Citizen:

"With the completion of the 10 millionth home in the United States since 1845, it is safe to say that America has built more homes in a decade than any other country in history... It illustrates how the many cogs in the free enterprise machine work in harmony, for building construction is not merely a matter of putting materials together. Back of the construction industry is the vast army of producers and suppliers, along with the banks and other financial institutions which gather individual savings and mobilize them for building and other useful purposes."

Glencoe, Minn., Enterprise: "The seven billion dollars' worth of surplus wheat, corn, rice, butter, cheese and dry milk stored away safe from the open market is poor business for the U. S. Government. You and I and every American taxpayer
